

Marcie Wolf- Hubbard

Marcie Wolf Hubbard's fascination with drawing the figure's grace in charcoal forms the foundation for her mixed media encaustic paintings. She embeds her drawings in hot wax then adds layers of transparent or opaque color along with other materials such as maps, postcards or handmade paper. Marcie augments her energetic application of the brush-painted wax by drawing and carving with a tool as well as applying oil stick pigments (oil paint in solid form.) She fuses each layer of wax or painting in wax to the preceding layer. Marcie marries additive collage imagery with encaustic's mysterious depth and transparency to achieve the effect of an image floating on vellum. She further lends an earthy note to her delicate paintings by using natural wood support and textural elements.

Marcie Wolf-Hubbard received her B.A. from the University of Maryland in Studio Art and studied Fine Art & Illustration at the Maryland Institute, College of Art. She has received numerous grants from the Arts and Humanities Council of Montgomery County, along with other Art Councils to work in the community with children and adults, including individuals with special needs. Her paintings have been exhibited widely on the East Coast. Marcie has illustrated for magazines and books, as well as worked as a courtroom illustrator. Marcie used encaustic painting to illustrate her husband, David Hubbard's children's book, *The Shiny Shell, *an environmental fantasy. Her nature paintings will be included in Ashley Rooney's upcoming book, *Green Art: Trees, Roots, and Leaves, featuring international artists. *Marcie is an instructor at Glen Echo Park and teaches art in her studio at the Pyramid Atlantic Art Center, Silver Spring, MD.
